U.S. AIR FORCE

Authority of Scope

- Written approval is a prerequisite for proposed contract action...must be in file.
- Usually for individual contract action but, Class Determinations and Findings (D&F's) may be used in some cases (1.703)
- D&F approval is restricted to certain contract actions (specific to contract)

U.S. AIR FORCE

Types of D & F

- CLASS – 1.703

- Provides authority for a class of contracting actions
- May be for the same or related supplies or services
- Must have an expiration date

- INDIVIDUAL

- For a specific contracting action
- Authority to act expires when it is exercised or expires

U.S. AIR FORCE

Usage

- The determination and findings (D&F) and the documentation supporting the D&F must identify the source to be excluded from the contract action (DFARS 206.202(B)(ii)).
- Individual action or classes of contract actions
- Reasonable degree of flexibility
- Options

Content of D & F

Each D& F shall set forth enough facts and circumstances to clearly and convincingly justify the specific determination made. As a minimum each D&F shall include (FAR 1.704):

- Identification of agency, contracting office and document as a D&F
- Nature/description of the action being approved
- Citation of appropriate statute/regulation
- Findings that detail the particular circumstances
- Determination that the action is justified
- Expiration date (if required)
- Signature or authorized official and date

U.S. AIR FORCE

When to use a D&F

- A D&F can go into a Justification and Approval (J&A) when doing other than full and open competition or any J&A depending on the Contracting Officer [FAR 6.303-2 (7)]
 - Interagency Acquisitions under the Economy Act (FAR 17.503)
 - Providing Facilities (FAR 45.302-1, DFAR 245.302-1)
- Other examples might include Sole source contracts, Options and Modifications.
- Keep in mind that the examples mentioned above do not include all the times one might use a D&F. The examples given here are just common uses for the D&F.
- The use of a D&F is ultimately up to the CO.
